

Abstract

System and method of cleaning wares of a plurality of establishments, each of the plurality of establishments having a location and a set of wares. The set of wares are collected from each of the plurality of establishments. The set of wares from all of the plurality of establishments are cleaned following the collecting step. Following the cleaning step, the set of wares are delivered to each respective one of the plurality of establishments.